

PERSONNEL TRAINING IN PHARMACEUTICAL MANUFACTURING

DAVID A. GALLUP, KATHERINE V. DOMENICK, AND MARGE GILLIS

Training and Communications Group, Inc., Berwyn, Pennsylvania

Contents

- 1 Overview
 - 1.1 Background
 - 1.2 Training Requirements
 - 1.3 Good Training Practices and Pharmaceutical Manufacturing
 - 1.4 What Is Competency-Based Training?
 - 1.5 Why Is Competency-Based Training So Important?
- 2 Developing a Training Plan: Strategy to Ensure Training Compliance in a Pharmaceutical Manufacturing Facility
 - Section 1 Training Organization
 - Section 2 Training Programs
 - Section 3 Training Development
 - Section 4 Training Implementation
 - Section 5 Training Recordkeeping
- References

1 OVERVIEW

1.1 Background

By law and by ethical commitment, companies that manufacture pharmaceutical products must make sure that what they produce is safe and effective. Ensuring that pharmaceutical manufacturing personnel possess the competencies necessary to perform their jobs correctly and efficiently is critical to a safe and successful

Pharmaceutical Sciences Encyclopedia: Drug Discovery, Development, and Manufacturing

Edited by Shayne C. Gad

Copyright © 2010 John Wiley & Sons, Inc.