

TABLE 10.1
Ethnomedicinal Uses of Schefflera Plants

Scientific Name	Common Name(s)	Parts Used	Traditional Uses	Preparation and Mode of Administration	References
S. octophylla (Lour.) Harms	Chân chim báy lá	Leaves and bark	Itching	Leaves and bark are crushed, then applied on the affected part	Hoang et al. 2008
S. abyssinica Harms.		Leaves Shoot tip	Itching Toothache	Mixed with butter Mixed with milk	Zerabruk and Yirga 2012 Zerabruk and Yirga 2012
S. bengalensis Gamb.	Au Cha Pee	Leaves and stem	Postpartum depression, bone and joint pain, antispasmodic	Decoction, oral, bathing	Kannika et al. 2011
S. arboricola (Hayata) Merr.	hào ying	Leaves Leaves and stem	Sore swellings Postpartum care	Mashed material, external Boil and apply as a wash or hot compress	Zheng et al. 2009 Homervergel and Young 2014
S. barteri Harms.	Guetsa		Pregnancy and childbirth-related issues		Yemele et al. 2015
S. elliptica (Blume) Harms	Dandoleseh	Leaves Stem	Bone fractures Postpartum care	Paste/topical Boil and apply as a wash or hot compress	Punnam et al. 2015 Homervergel and Young 2014

(Continued)